Traffic Association Takes a Hand

IN THE VALLEY SCHEME

Will at Once Begin Soliciting Subscriptions for the San Joaquin Valley Road.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 12.—The Traffic Association has made definite arrangements for soliciting subscriptions on behalf of the proposed railroad in the San Joaquin valley, between Stockton and Bakersfield.

At a largely attended meeting of the association executive committee today three committees were appointed to commence a campaign for funds.

These gentlemen are expected to raise $350,000 in order to proceed with the incorporation of the railroad company.

The total amount desired before endeavoring to begin the actual construction of the road is $1,000,000. Of this amount it is expected San Francisco will subscribe $750,000, and the people of the San Joaquin valley $250,000.

MORE BODIES FOUND.

The Death List Now Swelled to Fifteen.

CHICAGO, July 12.—The list of victims of the World's Fair holocaust still increases.

This afternoon another body was recovered from the ruins of the cold storage building, swelling the death list to fifteen, with a large area of debris still unexplored. The remains recovered this afternoon were those of Ralph A. Drummond, constructing engineer of the cold storage company.

It is known that at least two or three, and probably half a dozen more bodies are yet in the ruins, as a Michigan capitalist, an amateur elevator boy and a Columbian guard are still missing.

It appears probable that the families of the victims of the fire will not want for the necessaries of life, as up to this afternoon $12,625 had been subscribed, and subscriptions were coming in rapidly. It is hoped that the total may be swelled to $100,000.

Up in Smoke.

MAXWELL, Cal., July 12.—A fire originated in a hardware store at 1.15 a.m., supposed to be incendiary. Twelve houses were burned and a warehouse, with about 10,000 sacks of wheat, on which there is no insurance. A livery stable, the postoffice, two saloons, three stores, Harden Brothers' insurance office, the Mercury newspaper office and a blacksmith shop were also destroyed. The loss is estimated at about $100,000, with about $35,000 insurance.

Oakland—A fire started this afternoon in a room of a building used as a lodging house on Seventh street, near Myrtle, and before the flames were got under control the entire block known as the Gregory block was badly damaged. The loss is estimated at $20,000, and insured for $24,000.

Easier Times Ahead.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Bank presidents and others occupying positions familiarizing them with current conditions have unanimously agreed that the general situation has improved and continues to do so. There was nothing in the financial situation of the country to produce such an unsettling. Two or three cases were reported today of county banks, mostly in Pennsylvania, coming into the market as buyers of commercial paper in a small way, tempted thereto by high rates of interest and the fact that they had money to their credit with their New York agents. It is believed this indicates an easier monetary condition in certain sections of the country.

Not Worth the Living.

SAN BERNARDINO, July 12.—Robert P. White, a prominent citizen of this city, was found dead in his bed this morning at his residence with a bullet hole through his head and an old army pistol lying on the floor. White has lived alone since the death of his wife. He had not been seen for several days and it is supposed he committed the deed Monday night. Since the death of his wife, to whom he was devotedly attached, White has been despondent at intervals and has been heard to say that life was not worth the living. He left a letter on a table addressed to his brother giving particulars of where to find his bank account and other property, valued at about $20,000.

At a Low Notch.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—It looks very much as if the treasury of the United States would be compelled to do some active work in order to carry out the provisions of the Sherman law this month. July is now almost half gone and still the treasury has purchased only a fraction more than 16 per cent of the 4,500,000 ounces prescribed. The price paid when the June purchases were completed was 82.20 per ounce; July 7th 10,000 ounces were taken at 72; next day 538,000 ounces at 72.30 was accepted; 100,000 ounces was purchased Monday at 71.50, which completes the purchase so far this month.

Freedom Extended.

CHICAGO, July 12.—The day opened clear and hot at the World's Fair grounds, but later a refreshing breeze from the lake sprang up and the turnstile was kept busy registering admissions. The Viking ship was sighted off Evanston and the United States vessels fired salutes and joined in a procession to the fair grounds. Off Van Buren street Mayor Harrison went on board and presented the captain and crew with the freedom of the city; then, amid a chorus of cheers, blowing of whistles and booming of cannon the fleet proceeded to the park, and on arrival the visitors were escorted to the Administration building, where they were welcomed by the exposition officials.

Silver Advocates.

DENVER, July 12.—Interest in the silver convention has not in the least abated from yesterday, and when called to order this morning standing room was not to be had. After the appointment of delegates to the St. Louis and Chicago silver conventions and to the gold bug gathering at St. Paul, the committee on resolutions presented a report which was unanimously adopted. The report is in the nature of an appeal to the people of the United States.

CHAMPION JAWERS.

Mr. Mitchell Now Has a Few Words to Say.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Charles Mitchell has cabled the World as follows in regard to Jim Corbett's contemplated match with Peter Jackson in November:

"Corbett can do as he pleases, but should he suffer defeat I certainly have no use for him. I shall be in America early in September and will sign articles then, or if it be more satisfactory I am perfectly willing to sign them here if they are forwarded to me. Up to the present time I thought that Corbett meant business and was a fair and square man in all his dealings. Now, however, I feel certain that he desires to avoid meeting me. The Columbian Athletic club, or any other club in America where the authorities will not interfere with a match, will suit me."

Will Come to Train.

LONDON, July 12.—Peter Jackson having received advices of Parson Davies action in making a match for him with Corbett, will sail for New York July 19th.

OPENLY VIOLATED.

The State Dispensary Not a Howling Success.

NEW YORK, July 12.—A special from Charleston, S. C., says: This city is still waiting with expectant awe the punishment promised it by Governor Tillman for refusing to take the state cocktail from a state dispensary. The dispensary law has been in operation now nearly two weeks, and while a few liquor shops have been closed most of the 200 saloons are still open. Some of them display signs with lists of soft drinks, but the tiger lurks in the rear and shows himself whenever the password is given.

Sessions Squeezed.

OAKLAND, July 12.—E. C. Sessions, for many years president of the Oakland bank of savings, the heaviest bank in Oakland, has resigned, and Isaac L. Requa has been elected his successor. Mr. Sessions has been heavily interested in street railroads, real estate and a large enterprise in the harbor, and the financial pinch has caught him with large sums due, and he finds it hard to raise the money now on his lands. The state law forbidding the loaning of money by banks to their officers has been strictly obeyed, and Mr. Sessions does not owe the bank a dollar. The bank is all right, and President Sessions' resignation is not expected to alter the course of business in the least.

A Chance for a Bet.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Coney Island club people and Corbett's manager, William Brady, signed articles calling for a contest with Mitchell at Coney Island next December, the winner to receive the full purse of $40,000 without reserve. Mitchell's signature must be obtained before August 5th to make the articles binding.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

Von Caprivi is ill with swollen veins.

It will be warmer in the San Joaquin valley today.

The weather in Chicago is becoming decidedly sultry.

The President did not go fishing yesterday with Joe Jefferson.

The Bank of Commerce of Springfield, Mo., closed its doors yesterday.

C. M. Barnes, a Chicago bookseller and stationer, assigned for $175,000 yesterday.

There are eighty cases of cholera and forty deaths in the hospital at Alexandria, Egypt.

The South Carolina dispensary law does not start off with the boom it was anticipated it would.

Trouble exists in Panama over the canal lands. There are too many squatters to suit the canal company, and there is considerable excitement.

The funeral services over the remains of Georgie Drew Barrymore was held in Stephens' Protestant Episcopal Church, Philadelphia, yesterday. Interment in Glenwood cemetery.

The grand jury at Milwaukee has indicted all the officers and directors of the Plankington bank for the transactions leading to the failure of that institution. They were arrested and gave bail.

The South Dakota building at the World's Fair was dedicated yesterday in the presence of several thousand spectators. The building was beautifully decorated with flags, bunting and flowers.

INSTALLATION AND BANQUET

Vineland Lodge of Knights of Pythias Entertainment.

The officers of Vineland Lodge of Knights of Pythias were installed in their castle hall last night.

The following were the officers installed: Thomas H. Lynch, P.C.; Harry Bell, C.C.; R. McDonald, V.C.; George Graham, prelate; William McDougall, I.C.; E. Dietz, O.G.

After the installation exercises the newly elected officers invited those present to a banquet at the City Bakery on I street. The spread was an elegant one and was heartily enjoyed. The feast was followed by speeches from a number of the Knights present and they had a jolly time generally. The lodge is in a flourishing condition.

ACCIDENT NEAR MALAGA.

A Farmer Severely Injured by Falling From a Harvester.

Last Friday morning F. Grant Barnes, a farmer of Malaga, while descending from the driver's seat of his harvester lost his footing and fell.

He saved himself from instant death by grasping the brake rod in falling to the ground. The fall resulted in a dislocation and badly broken shoulder.

He was immediately taken to the residence of his father-in-law and Dr. Hare telephoned for, who responded and reduced the dislocation and attended to his injuries. It will be some time before he will be able to work again.

At 6 o'clock in the afternoon Mrs. Barnes presented her husband with a daughter.

The Public Schools.

County Superintendent Thomas J. Kirk has apportioned the amount of school funds received from the state as appears in another column.

He is frequently applied to to fix the date of opening the common schools in the fall. He has no power to do this but suggests that all the schools open the coming term on Monday, September 18th.

THE CHURCH MILITANT

War Declared Among the Street Preachers.

"SHE IS AN IMPOSTOR."

"Sweet Beulah Land" Sung With Many Discordant Notes Last Night.

About April 20th last Mrs. Van Carnap and her spiritual son, H. W. Lambert, came to Fresno and opened the Beulah mission on I street near the corner of Merced.

They devoted their time to street preaching and every evening held religious services in rented quarters until recently, when they secured a tent, some chairs and other necessary furniture and occupied a portion of a vacant lot.

About a week ago a Mrs. Jorgan and a gentleman wearing a fore-and-aft straw hat began street preaching at the corner of J and Mariposa streets, and divided honors and crowds with the Beulah band which held its preliminary street meeting at the corner of I and Mariposa.

Night before last it became evident that they did not jibe, for they began to make unpleasant remarks about each other—the Beulah people not recognizing the genuineness of the opposition band at the other end of the block.

Last night Mrs. Jorgan and her friend participated in an open air exhortation to sinners midway between the pop corn and tamale stands. In the course of the appeal to dying sinners some reference was made to the opposition house.

This brought out Mr. Lambert, who was present, and stepping forward he denounced Mrs. Jorgan as an imposter of the rankest kind, and this opened up a love feast at which, owing to an evident accumulation of soiled linen, the ceremony of foot washing was omitted.

The wrangle did not last long before the police interfered and ordered that the laundry work be conducted elsewhere. Mr. Lambert's declaration that Mrs. Jorgan was an imposter was met by the retort that she was working for the Lord and did not keep a man.

At Beulah headquarters Mrs. Von Carnap stated that her work was authorized and that she had expended over $500 since she came here in the work and that thirty converts from respectable walks in life had resulted.

Of free will contributions about $60 had been received from people in Fresno. They did not beg nor take up collections. On the other hand she had known Mrs. Jorgan last April to make false statements and to represent to people that she was destitute and did not have a nickel to purchase food with, when she had at the time $45 fastened in a sack to her corset.

She would not have anything to do with anyone possessed with Judas-like love for the sack, and they parted company. She then produced some copies of the Stockton Mail of last May and June claiming that Mrs. Jorgan, or Georgian, was possessed of a surplus of husbands.

She also intimated that Mrs. Jorgan, while long on husbands, was short on truth, good intentions and honesty, and that she was soliciting funds for the mission and people under the belief that they were aiding the Beulah mission had contributed to her, when in fact Mrs. J. was the beneficiary.

She claimed that Mrs. Jorgan had boasted that she had made from $8 to $25 per day in this way from well disposed people. She produced her credentials from headquarters and thereby showed her caveat as the only original Beulah.

Mrs. Jorgan could not be found after the crowd had been dispersed by the police, but from the vigorous language used and her declared intention to have Lambert arrested for disturbing her peace this morning, they will be given out today.

She intimated that the personal relations of the managers of the Beulah mission with each other were not in accordance with the principles of modern theology.

One cannot without further revelation form an idea of the exact state of affairs further than that things are badly mixed just at present.

EVANS AND JACKSON MEET

They Talk Over the Fight at Stone Corral.

Yesterday afternoon Fred E. Jackson and Chris Evans met for the first time since the battle at Stone Corral.

Evans was locked up in his cell at the jail when Jackson entered. The latter took a chair beside the grated door, set his crutches against the wall and then shook hands with Evans.

Evans greeted him with smiles and said that he was glad to see him now that the war was over, and seemed pleased to see Jackson.

They sat there for a long time, Evans nursing the stump of his left arm and Jackson the stump of his left leg, and talked over the incidents of the fight that crippled both of them for life.

Jackson is at present stopping with his sister, the wife of Mr. Craig, of Craig & Sanford of the City bakery. Mrs. M. A. Morgan of this city is also a sister of Deputy Marshal Jackson.

FRESNO'S EXHIBIT.

A Card From Commissioner Harding About It.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN.—I am a little surprised at the action of the Board of Supervisors in rescinding the appropriation of the $1000 made on Monday for the Fresno county exhibit at Chicago.

When I was before the board last week they informed me that there still remained $1000 that, under the act of the last legislature authorizing them to appropriate for that purpose, and a majority of the board were willing and did on Monday last make said appropriation. Two of the members that voted for the appropriation have stated to me that they knew nothing of the order rescinding the action.

It is a well known fact that, prior to moving the exhibit to Chicago to facilitate matters and place funds for the immediate use of the commission, the board did accept the bond of Messrs. Hughes and Wilson and transferred the money to the First National bank for their use. This action, as I understood it, left the commission to simply ratify the action of the board and to audit accounts afterward presented to it. G. A. Wilson, secretary of the commission, was elected superintendent of the exhibit at Chicago, and the members of the commission have since been so scattered that no meetings have been held, and I suppose Mr. Wilson has hardly expected to be called upon at this time to render a statement of moneys expended. However I have written him of the board's request, and no doubt a report will soon be forthcoming.

I am well satisfied the money has been used to the best interests of Fresno county, and the universal praise the exhibit has received from hundreds of people who have seen it and reported back, verifies the fact.

Now if funds are not furnished by the people of Fresno county to keep the exhibit up, then the superintendent at Chicago must take care of it at their own expense or close their doors and take down their sign, advertising to the world that enterprise in Fresno county is a thing of the past. J. H. HARDING.

[It is stated that the allowance of $1000 was made under a clause in the county government act declared by the various courts to be unconstitutional, and was necessarily rescinded by the board when that fact was discovered. The board is understood to be in favor of granting the sum required, and will do so if any legal way may be found. An illegal allowance would doubtless be worse than useless, as any one interested could enjoin its payment.—ED.]

A Surprise Party.

A number of friends gave B. T. Scott a surprise party Tuesday evening, the occasion being the anniversary of his thirty-third birthday. The party entertained with refreshments and dancing.

Among those present were: U. S. Adams and wife, Mrs. John Davis, Mrs. S. J. Hender, Harry Hender, D. R. Adams, Misses Peckham, Mr. Peckam, Miss Clark, Mrs. Charles Kaiser, Misses Lillie and Chira Kaiser, Mr. Brown, Mark Hutchison, Miss Myrnie McVey.

Foreclosure Sale.

The sheriff yesterday sold on a foreclosure 4057.52 acres of land in township 14, south of range 23 east, for $34,000.

The sale was on a judgment in favor of R. P. Oliver, as trustee named in the last will and testament of J. C. Beidemann, against Thomas E. Hughes and E. W. and W. S. Chapman. The property lies east of Kings river, near Centerville in this county.

CRUSHED.

How Mrs. Jones Got Even With Her Husband For Staying Out.

Mr. Jones went home late the other night and found Mrs. Jones sitting up for him with an expression of countenance that instantly rendered him as sober as a judge when holding court.

"Met Thimpthon and went with him to then a boxing match—you—you—you don't care, do you, Maria?"

"No, indeed," answered Mrs. Jones amiably. "I really didn't expect you home so early. I thought you had gone to the camwhat is it, Jepthy?"

"Canvas, Maria! I'm going to be elected to fill that vacancy in the city council, and don't you forget it."

"No, dear, I won't. I didn't forget it tonight when a young man from the newspaper called to interview me about you."

"W-w-what did you tell him, Maria?"

"Nothing bad, Jepthy. Don't you worry, dear. You see he didn't want to know much about you now. It was your past he was looking into."

"Well, I haven't done anything to be ashamed of. I suppose you told him that I was a lawyer when you married me and stood high in the esteem of my fellow citizens, etc."

"No, that wasn't what he wanted. He asked me if I had any pictures of you taken in youth and early manhood and at later intervals"—

"What!"

"So I gave him the one you had taken for me when we were first engaged—that old daguerreotype, you know."

"Great heavens! The one where my hair comes down over my coat collar and covers my ears, and I am bearded like a pirate?"

"Yes, that's the very one."

"Maria, you never gave him that slab sided, knockkneed caricature of me, did you?"

"Yes, I did, Jepthy. I'm sure it looked just like you when it was taken. And there was an ambrotype of you when you organized the B. M. C. S. That was a sweet picture, because you looked so good."

"Looked so green, I should say," snorted Jones. "Maria, you have ruined every political chance I ever had. In that picture I look like a brass monkey. Thank goodness, there are no more portraits of me."

"Yes, there was one more. The crayon picture you gave me for a birthday present last year."

"That measly thing! I look like a murderer in that, Maria, and you know it."

"Yes, I always thought so. You said you had it painted because the artist was a poor girl who had a family to support. They will have you at three ages, Jepthy, and you can send the papers home to Jasper county and show how you've got famous at last. It's all the style to be triplicates now."

"Maria," gasped poor Jones, "you've sold me to the Philistines. I can never hold up my head again, never! I hope my fate will be a warning to all men not to have their pictures taken at any age. I'm crushed, Maria, crushed!"

And he knew by the twinkle in Maria's eye that she had done the cruel deed in a cold blooded spirit of domestic re-revenge! —Detroit Free Press.

Now is the opportunity for any man with a little money to get rich buying land in Fresno county.

An iceberg 600 feet high is floating along the coast of Iceland. The Iceland Board of Trade ought to raise a fund and send it as an exhibit to the World's Fair.

Bakersfield boasts of a baby a week old which has a full set of teeth. The infant should be promptly forwarded to the World's Fair as a sample product of our incomparable climate.

Jerry Simpson has announced his intention to become the governor of Kansas. The calamity platform promises to be a swift one, and just as likely as not Jerry will get there with both feet.

The Examiner expresses the fear that President Cleveland is overworking himself. It must be rather trying on a man to perform both the executive and legislative functions of the government.

Mummies fetch from $45 to $120 in the London market. The kilndried royalty of Egypt comes pretty cheap when compared to the prices paid for living specimens from other effete monarchies by American heiresses.

Emperor William of Germany has ordered the discharge of all the royal servants who voted for Socialist candidates for the Reichstag. William is wasting half his talent emperoring Germany. He should come to this country and go into practical politics.

A definite location has been selected for the Midwinter Fair in Golden Gate park. A more delightful and altogether desirable site could hardly be found anywhere. The fair will make good times in San Francisco this winter, and will eventually be of benefit to the entire coast. The low rates from the east cannot fail to bring many thousands of visitors, many of whom will decide to make their homes in our winterless climate.

The New York Journal asserts that Clinton Jewell, the Rhode Island rainmaker, has received a large number of letters from Sabbatarians urging him to take his machine to Chicago and make it rain every Sunday in order to prevent people from going to the World's Fair on that day. It does not appear to have occurred to these zealous people that if the Lord saw fit to deluge the fair on Sunday he would do it without the aid of machinery.

A resident of Boston by the name of W. C. Todd has donated the sum of $50,000, of which the annual income is $2000, to be used for the one purpose of paying subscriptions for newspapers. A large and well appointed apartment has been set aside for the newspaper reading room, and the Todd fund, supplemented by a liberal allowance from the annual income of the institution, will be devoted to the sole purpose of maintaining this newspaper library. A careful selection will be made of about a thousand American journals and several hundred foreign newspapers, which will be kept on file and open to the use of all visitors. The Bostonian has struck upon the right plan of giving useful information to the masses at a minimum of cost.

The Review of Reviews expresses the following opinion of the repeal of the state bank tax as declared for in the national Democratic platform: "To repeal the 10 per cent tax upon state bank notes would mean that Maine, Kansas, California, North Dakota, Ohio, and all other states would be in a position to authorize local banking institutions to flood the country with paper money which could have no certainty of uniform safety and value. A Zimri Daiggins might establish a chain of local banks on unsound principles and issue paper money which, mingled with the general volume of the country's currency, would be worthless in the hands of the last holders on the failure of the banks. It is now asserted in some quarters that congress will refuse to repeal the harmful silver purchase act unless the repeal be accompanied by the resurrection of the still more pernicious system of 'wildcat' paper money that was buried thirty years ago. Whatever may or not may be done with our currency laws, every business man, every farmer, every professional man who receives a salary, and every man or woman who earns wages or has a fixed money income, should insist absolutely upon a national, uniform currency, with the United States government at the back of every dollar in circulation."

A correspondent of the Stockton Mail who does not believe in free coinage asks that paper several questions, among them being this: "Would free coinage increase the price of the poor man's necessaries?"

To this the Mail makes the following reply:

Yes, of course. The products of the farm, the garden, the shop and the factory would go up. But the poor man, when he has steady employment at good wages, does not consume all he produces even when flour and pork are comparatively high. This has been shown in a number of instances on the Pacific Coast, notably in Nevada, where ordinary miners received $4 a day and skilled laborers were paid in proportion, the cost of living being correspondingly high. There is always a larger margin between wages and the cost of living when wages are high than when they are low. We all know perfectly well, and the gentleman whose article has called forth these remarks will freely admit, that when any distress among the working people is under discussion it is not the dearness of living that is dwelt upon, but the lowness of wages or the absence of work. But the more certain advantage to labor from free silver coinage or any other money measure that would supply the country with an ample circulating medium based upon the power and authority of the government, would be derived from the increased demand for labor which the development of new resources and the general hum of business would create.

The Mail's argument is sound. A slight increase in the cost of living cuts but little figure with the industrial classes of the country so long as there is plenty of work and fair wages. When the wheels of industry are humming there is but little poverty and destitution among the masses. The Mail's argument is good in its application to a sufficient volume of money to keep the car of industry and progress in motion, and it is equally good when applied to a tariff which encourages home industry and gives it advantages over that of countries which are anxious to supply the world with their products. In some instances the tariff may increase the price of our products and the cost of living to that extent, but so long as it fosters home industry which furnishes employment to home labor, it is a benefit to the country as a whole and to the laboring classes in particular beyond all the cavil and prejudice of partisanship.

To the unprejudiced mind it is as plain as the sun at noonday that in a large degree the present stagnation in business is due to the avowed purpose to disrupt and destroy the protective system.

His Conclusion.

The scene was a third class smoking compartment, five on a side. The speaker was stout, florid, with short cut gray hair and very self satisfied. The effeminate degeneracy of modern young men was his theme.

"Look at me! Sixty years of age—never had a day's illness in my life and can do my five miles an hour!

"Why? Because from when I was 20 to when I was over 40 I lived a regular life. No delicacies for me! No late hours! Every day, summer and winter, I went to bed at 9, got up at 5, lived principally on porridge, worked hard—hard, mind you, from 8 to 1, then dinner, then an hour's walking exercise and then——

"Beg your pard'n, guv'nor," interrupted a young workingman sitting opposite, "but wot was you in for?"—Tit-Bits.

"So you're engaged!"

"How'd you guess it?"

"Because you don't wear a veil any more."—Truth.

Advice From Doctors.

Every one should know by this time that it is dangerous to ask a doctor's or a lawyer's advice even in the most casual and public manner unless one expects to pay him for it. There is a well authenticated story of a man in New York who chanced to remark to a celebrated physician once:

"Doctor, have you any sure means of preventing seasickness?"

"Certainly," said the doctor.

"What is it?"

"Stay on shore!" said the physician and sent the man his bill.

Another gentleman, who was a valetudinarian, met a doctor of his acquaintance on the street one day.

"Doctor," said he, "I'm glad I met you. Do you know, I've so weak that the least bit of walking on these pavements tires me out. What do you think I'd better take?"

"A horse car, I guess," said the doctor crustily. And he, too, sent in a little memorandum of the amount due for this wise prescription.—Youth's Companion.

A Conclusion.

"Any letters for me, miss?"

"No."

"Any for gran'ma?"

"No."

"Aunt Sally?"

"None."

"The Jinkins gals?"

"None."

"Why, you hain't giv' us any letter in three weeks!"

"Can't help it."

"Got any side meat?"

"Yes."

"Well, I reckon we won't take any."—Atlanta Constitution.

"Our Family Physician"

Is a standard work, over 100,000 copies having been printed and sold. It was compiled and edited by H. R. Stant, M. D., a physician of more than national reputation. It is a plain, practical and reliable guide to the detection and treatment of all the diseases common to the country. Designed for use by people who have not made the practice of medicine a study or a business and who are not supposed to be familiar with technical phrases and names, but want information stated in plain English. Gives separately with every disease the treatment prescribed by each "school" and full and explicit directions for nursing the sick, preparation of food for the sick, etc.

To know when to go after a doctor is an important thing. Nine times out of ten calling one is a useless expense, while failing to call one at the proper time may cost a life. This book contains 540 pages, bound in cloth, making an ornamental, as well as useful, addition to any library.

TESTIMONY ALL IN.

The Argument Begun in the Heath Trial.

A VERY EXCITING DISCUSSION

Mr. Johnson Asks the Court to Have Mr. Foote Ejected from the Room.

The testimony was concluded in the Heath case yesterday morning, and Mr. Walser began the argument on behalf of the prosecution. He will resume his remarks this morning.

There were several exciting incidents and much strong language, all of which are detailed below.

M. M. Parsons testified that shortly after the death of McWhirter Heath visited the Parsons ranch and one day, while Parsons was talking in a general way of the murder, Parsons remarked how terrific the fight must have been between McWhirter and the murderers, and Heath said, "Yes, he stood up like a man."

M'WHIRTER'S BRAVE FIGHT.

"Is it not a fact, and have you not so said to me, that Heath was out there at your place for a week or two, and that you observed him very closely for any act that would indicate any evidence of guilt on his part, and you observed none?" asked Mr. Foote.

The question was ruled out.

John Chenoweth, a compositor, was called to rebut the testimony concerning the tracks in the alley made by Engineer Norton. Mr. Chenoweth had been examining tracks made by a tennis shoe before Norton came into the alley at all. The evidence was ruled out as not being in rebuttal and being a part of the original case.

George L. Hoxie, surveyor, made some measurements of various distances between Mrs. Bedford's residence and the mouth of the McWhirter alley, and stated what those measurements were.

William Shields, livery stable keeper, S. M. Pancake, Charles C. Bailey, deputy county surveyor, and G. A. Webster, druggist, testified that the reputation of Dr. G. P. Watson was good.

Ex-Policeman Johnston testified that Bloor was with him when he heard Heath's voice in Henry's stable on the night before the murder, and that four or five months afterwards Bloor spoke about it and said that he would swear to it.

John Albin, lessee of the Pleasanton hotel, testified that Dr. Watson's reputation was good.

Here the prosecution rested in rebuttal.

THE DEFENSE IN REBUTTAL.

Dentist Cooper was called by the defense in rebuttal to describe the trees around the alley opposite his house, after which the testimony in the whole case closed.

Foote offered to hand in his instructions and submit the case without argument, but Mr. Johnson smiled sweetly and murmured something about a cold bluff.

A HOT SHOT OPENING.

The opening argument for the prosecution was begun by Deputy District Attorney Walser at 2 o'clock. The court room was crowded to its utmost capacity.

Mr. Walser began by reading the definition of murder as laid down in the statutes, and the defense objected to his reading law books to the jury, as the Court ruled that Mr. Walser might read the definition of murder to the jury.

He expressed his belief that this was a cold blooded, premeditated, foul murder, committed with malice aforethought by the defendant.

Mr. Foote interrupted by objecting to the speaker expressing his belief. He was going outside of the limits of the law.

Mr. Johnson asked the Court to prevent these interruptions.

"I want to ask," continued Mr. Foote, "if every right that this defendant is entitled to is to be trampled under foot at the suggestion of private counsel for the prosecution."

Mr. Johnson requested the Court to instruct the counsel for the defense not to interrupt Mr. Walser.

The Court ruled that Mr. Walser was in order and Mr. Walser continued.

"It has been observed all through this case that the counsel for the defense have tried to terrorize us and to intimidate and bulldose the witnesses on the stand, and I knew when they came into this court room and attempted to run that cold bluff on us to submit the case without argument, that they relied upon interrupting me in attempting to break down the force of my argument."

PREMEDITATED MURDER.

The counsel proceeded to review the evidence: "If the assassins were not there for the purpose of killing McWhirter why didn't they escape when he came out of the house? The testimony is that McWhirter rang the door bell. That gave them the opportunity of escaping if they wished to do so. They went there for the purpose of taking that man's life. They prepared the ambush; they arranged the decoy of making a noise along the side of his house to draw him out. Mrs. McWhirter awakened her husband and said: 'Did you hear that noise?' 'What noise?' We know now that the noise was made by that cowardly murderer there," and Mr. Walser as he uttered these words turned and pointed his hand at the defendant, "and for the purpose of drawing him into the ambush that he had prepared. If he knew what the cause of that noise was that lonely woman would not be here subject to allurs and insults."

Mr. Foote rose to his feet again and said: "I say, sir, that if you say I didn't treat Mrs. McWhirter with decency you say what is not true."

"I ask your honor to stop this," said Mr. Johnson.

Mr. Foote continued: "I don't want this man to make false statements about me, sir. I didn't ask this lady an improper question, and I don't want such remarks to be made."

"THEY CAN'T SCARE US."

"Such remarks will be made undoubtedly during the course of the argument. They can't scare us. We ask the ruling of the Court," said Mr. Johnson.

"I don't care what the ruling of the Court is," rejoined Mr. Foote. "I will not stand here and allow myself to be lied about. I ask your honor to state whether I did not treat that lady with consideration on the stand?"

Mr. Foote was very much in earnest and very stern, and his interruption caused considerable commotion in the court room.

"I have the right to the floor," said Mr. Walser, "and I ask the protection of the court."

"I ask your honor to make the District Attorney argue the case fairly," demanded Mr. Foote.

Mr. Johnson, who had been on his feet for some moments, got a chance to edge a word in and said: "I ask the Court to make him sit down and keep quiet during the argument."

"I decline to sit down," retorted Mr. Foote, "until your honor rules that he has no right to make a statement devoid of truth."

The Court informed Mr. Foote that he had a right to reply and could do so when his turn came.

"I have the right or not, just as I please," retorted Mr. Foote. "Your honor is to see that this argument is conducted properly, and I ask now in the interest of justice and decency that your honor do it."

The court ruled that Mr. Foote had no right to interrupt Mr. Walser.

"I except to the ruling of the court. I take my seat under protest, and when that statement is made again I shall rise again," said Mr. Foote.

Mr. Walser proceeded with his argument. He said: "The counsel and I disagree as to what his conduct was. Perhaps he didn't use insulting words to that lady, but the manner of asking questions can be more insulting than words spoken, and I say that not only the feelings of a wife on the witness stand have not been respected, but he outraged the feelings of every witness who appeared for the prosecution in the case. You saw witnesses on the stand helpless and compelled to sit there while Mr. Foote roasted them, and they had no protection from the court. They had to sit and take it.

"You saw Thomas Welch, an honest, hard-working man, compelled to sit there while counsel was calling him a perjured villain and a lying thief. It seems to me that it is rather out of place for a man who has reared through this case for thirty days during this trial to kick against the pricks."

NOT KICKING AGAINST THE PRICKS.

"I am not kicking against the pricks," interrupted Mr. Foote, "but I'm kicking against the charge that I did not treat this lady respectfully."

Mr. Johnson was angry. With many gesticulations he said: "I ask your honor to remove this disturbing element from the courtroom as long as he will not behave himself like a gentleman. I ask your honor to have him put out by the sheriff."

"I am behaving myself as a gentleman," retorted Mr. Foote.

"And I ask your honor to have him removed," continued Mr. Johnson, "and protect this man. Mr. Foote has a right to reply to Mr. Walser. If his skin is so thin that he cannot stand Mr. Walser's speaking the truth he should leave the room. I ask this man who is attempting to bulldose the district attorney to keep his peace."

POURING OIL.

Mr. Deuprey arose to perform the oil pouring act. "There is no attempt on the part of this gentleman," he said, "to do anything except what he is entitled to in the performance of his duty. When a man tells that which he knows to be absolutely false we have a right to object and put our objections on the record."

"The gentleman's position is unfair," responded Mr. Walser, "for there sits the official reporter taking down any speech verbatim and the record is being made. If I utter anything outside of the law, there is the record. As a matter of fact their purpose is to stop my argument if they can."

A TRIBUTE TO THE DEAD.

"The man who died at his home so tragically—Louis B. McWhirter—in all this country had not one man to say a word against him. He was universally respected, welcomed in all homes where decent men are permitted to go; he was welcomed in business life and social circles. He was universally respected. All that there was of life was before him. Endowed naturally with great mental attainments at the time of his death he was a leader among men. He had committed no crime; he had hurt no one; he had done no injury, and yet he was called from his house by cowardly midnight assassins and shot to death like a dog, in his own back yard, as if he had been the vilest thing on earth.

"Was there ever a more fiendish, diabolical, scoundrelly plot prepared than was that by the defendant in this case and his companions to do a man to death. Had it not been that the decisive shot was so suddenly fatal; had McWhirter lived long enough to have uttered the name of the man who killed him in my judgment the name he would have spoken would be Richard S. Heath, the defendant in this case. I believe that every fact in this case points to Heath and no one else. Yet counsel for the defense said in the opening of this case, 'we will show you that this man committed suicide.'"

"We didn't make any opening statement," interrupted Mr. Foote.

"No," retorted Mr. Walser, 'you didn't have the fairness to make one. We made our opening statement and we proved every part of it by the evidence, and when the time came for the defense to make a statement they didn't have the courage to tell you what they expected to prove. They didn't have the courage to say why McWhirter committed suicide, yet they asked Doctor Pedlar whether he didn't hear Mrs. McWhirter say, 'why did you do this.'"

"Do you know why they abandoned that theory? why they suddenly sent home their witnesses without putting them on the stand? It was because men went on that stand whose word could not be contradicted and they told you that it was murder. That is why they abandoned that theory."

Here another interruption occurred, this time from Mr. Deuprey, who objected to Mr. Walser's remarks as relating something that was not on the record.

"It is not on the record," replied Mr. Walser, "but I act upon the conduct of the attorneys for the defense, and the defendant is bound by the acts of his attorneys. I say that they did on their cross-examination outline the defense and that defense was suicide, but they didn't have the nerve to go on with it."

Mr. Deuprey broke in with another objection.

"I would like the gentleman to rise when he addresses the Court," suggested Mr. Walser.

This remark appeared to nettle Mr. Deuprey, and he replied blandly, "I won't take any instructions from you."

THE CLOWN ACT.

Mr. Walser said that his argument had been interrupted so often that it was like a theatrical representation. He was doing the tragedy act, "and up jumps Deuprey and does the clown act." Mr. Walser, proceeding with his argument, said that if there was a single man in the community who had heard all the evidence and who still believed that McWhirter committed suicide, that man was off his mental balance.

The speaker proceeded to dissect the evidence bearing on this point. He argued that Polley was the man who ran across the block from Calaveras street to K street with his hat in his hand, and whom Mrs. Leach saw, while Heath, more confident in the backing of his wealthy friends in San Francisco to hire lawyers for him, leisurely walked down the alley, where he was seen by Mrs. Gaetano.

Reference was next made to the fact that Mr. Terry and Heath changed seats when Mrs. Gaetano came into court, and Heath leaned over to Mr. Foote, his counsel, and began an animated discussion with him as if debating a point of law. If that conversation could have been heard it might have been, "Great God! I wonder if she will know me."

"Turn Heath loose if you like," continued the speaker, "and you put a premium on secret assassination so that any man who desires the death of any person in his road may hire the assassin with impunity. You may free Dick Heath but you never can clear away the fact that he is the murderer of Louis B. McWhirter. Clear him if you will, but a murderer he will remain to the end of his days; I don't care what kind of a verdict you bring in. Go where he may to the extreme confines of the earth the fact will follow him that he perpetrated a murder in Fresno county and did it like a coward in the dead of the night.

"The verdict of the jury will not alter my opinion, for I believe that the man who killed McWhirter is today on trial for his life."

Mr. Deuprey broke in with another objection and Judge Holmes, who had been busy reading over the instructions for the jury, said that he had not heard what Mr. Walser had said and remarked that the counsel for the defense could make a full reply when their turn came.

"Suppose we don't reply?" asked Mr. Foote.

"That will be your fault," returned the judge.

"No; it is not our fault; we have a right not to reply if we wish," continued Mr. Foote.

HOW MRS. GRAHAM WAS TREATED.

Mr. Walser proceeded to show that the cross-examination of Mrs. Leslie Graham had been characterized by brutality and insult, not of spontaneous remarks but of insults deliberately offered. They tried to impeach her by first making her angry and then insulting her in order to break down her testimony.

"As she was compelled to sit there helpless and friendless, with not one person in all this court room to stand up and say, 'I am that lady's protector; you must stop,'"

Here Mr. Foote interrupted with, "Your honor knows that it is your duty when a witness is not treated properly to call the attention of the counsel to the fact. I don't think that is a proper argument to make."

"I say," replied Mr. Walser, "that she sat on that witness stand and that she was treated in a manner that she would not have been had she been a man."

"Let Mr. Walser go on with his argument," said the court.

Mr. Walser read from the transcript of the cross-examination of Mrs. Graham to show that Mr. Foote's questions were not respectful. He mimicked Mr. Foote's abrupt and loud manner of questioning the lady, and raised a laugh in the court room. Even Mr. Foote quietly cracked a smile.

A TRIBUTE TO STILWELL.

Mr. Walser took up the manner in which Mr. Foote had cross-examined Charles J. Stilwell. He said that if there was ever one man more responsible than any other for the fact that Heath was on trial, that man was C. J. Stilwell. Counsel for the defense said at the commencement of the trial that they would prove a damnable conspiracy, led by Stilwell, of men who had banded themselves together for the purpose of sending an innocent man to the gallows. The counsel got up on their hind legs and howled that Stilwell was the man who did it all—that he chased people all over Fresno county with a bag of gold in one hand and an affidavit in the other, seeking those whom he could purchase to swear away the life of an innocent man.

They accused him of every crime that can be mentioned and when he sat on the witness stand the counsel assailed him as a liar, a perjurer and a subo ner of perjury, and said that they would present witnesses after witness to prove it.

Mr. Foote—Mr. Walser; Mr. Walser—

Mr. Walser—I have been interrupted at least fifteen times in eight minutes.

Mr. Foote—The testimony on the conspiracy proposition was ruled out, and he has no right to argue that question before this jury.

The Court—It seems to me, Mr. Foote, that he has a right to make his argument.

Mr. Walser—I am making that statement as to the conduct of the counsel for the defense.

Mr. Johnson—That's it. The conduct of counsel.

"I am glad to stand in the presence of the men who have traduced Mr. Stilwell," resumed Mr. Walser, "and say to you that I believe no more honorable man ever existed. During the months he has been here I have never known him to make a misrepresentation, and during this trial of thirty days where all that money and men could do to bring witnesses here to prove him a perjured scoundrel was done.

"They charged him with having written a decoy letter, and to give that argument some weight, speaking what they knew was not true, they tried deliberately to say that I was there when the letter was written. Yet there was not a witness on the stand but what said that I was not there, and yet Attorney Deuprey for the defense said, 'We expect to show that this man Walser persuaded Parsons to take that letter to the jail.'

A COWARDLY DEFENSE.

"I say that this is a brutal murder, a cowardly murder, and more than that it is a cowardly defense. It is not honest. It does not show that Heath is an innocent man to accuse Stilwell of inciting others to crime. It is done because they know they cannot attack the testimony for the prosecution, so like the water snake that lies among the rushes they try with venomed tongue to poison your minds against him. They gave him the longest cross-examination on record in this state.

"Here are some of the insulting questions they asked him, and which they did not produce a single witness to substantiate: 'Don't you know that you have promised Policeman Johnson $100 and that there's another man waiting to get his share of it.' Then they asked him whether he ever went by the name of Baker and Bassold.

"It is true that they don't like him. There is not a murderous or thieving scoundrel in California that does not dislike Stilwell. Corrupt legislators like Bruner do not like him. The men in Selma who was engaged in the infant industry of manufacturing patrided women do not like him. Yet this is a man who has been sent by a newspaper for the purpose of tracking and bringing to the light of day crimes that had been committed, and no man has been too big, no combination has been too strong to keep Stilwell from doing his duty.

"If he told upon the stand that which was not true, why didn't they bring witnesses here to contradict him. If he has indicted witnesses to swear falsely why has he not been put in jail.

"When they said that he was to receive a reward they said that which was not true. If Heath should be declared guilty today and the reward was paid Stilwell could not touch a dime of it, because what he has done has been done as the employe of the Blasingame family at $40 per week, and of the Examiner at another salary. He came not at his own solicitation, not because there was a reward, but because the defendant in this case voluntarily went into the Examiner office in San Francisco and there told a damnable lie, trying to besmirch the character of a decent man and woman of this town. That is what brought Stilwell here. If that is not what brought Stilwell here why didn't Heath deny it when he was on the stand."

THE MOTIVE.

Referring to the assertion that the prosecution had shown no motive for the murder, the speaker said:

"McWhirter was murdered for a reason that men within the sound of my voice in this court room know. I don't know."

The allegation that Heath and McWhirter were on friendly terms was next taken up. The speaker referred to the testimony of Greenebaum, Ward and others regarding Heath's declarations on the day of the murder that the —— of a —— committed suicide, and that he ought to have been dead long ago. No witness on the stand who had talked with Heath testified that Heath said he was sorry that McWhirter had been killed. This defendant is the man who felt so sorry that he lied in the Examiner office so that he could get an innocent man accused of the crime.

Reference was made to Heath calling Ike Walton out of a saloon and asking him whether he had heard that Heath was accused of the murder.

"Where is the man in all this county that told him that? No living man spoke a word to him about it. He was told by the voice of his own guilty conscience that will say to him everywhere, 'Thou art the murderer.'"

Heath's going into Bartgis' barber shop and getting his beard shaved off and saying, "The — of — think I killed McWhirter," was next commented upon, as was also Heath's remark to George W. Fuller that the coroner's jury had returned a hell of a verdict and that McWhirter had committed suicide.

"You can free Dick Heath if you like, but if you do it you must not complain if Fresno continues to keep its reputation of being a haven for murderers.

"Had the counsel for the defense been able to produce a decent, honest defense in this case they would have done so."

Mr. Walser asked why the defense had not produced the man who had conducted Heath to his room on the night before the murder, nor had they produced the chambermaid who made up his bed.

DETECTIVE BURY.

Detective Bury next came in for a share of Mr. Walser's roasting. Bury had been employed by citizens, then by the district attorney's office and he was now in the employ of the defense. Every witness that the defense produced had been to see Bury. He was the first man that ever spoke to Heath about the murder. James Ward, also in the employ of the defense, was with him. The speaker asked why Ward and Bury had not been placed on the stand to tell what they knew about the murder. It was because Bury was originally an employe of a San Francisco detective office, and every night he was required to make a full written report of everything he did and send it to the head office. Why did not the defense place Mr. Winchell and several others connected with the defense on the stand?

AN HONEST WAY.

"If I was defending a man charged with murder and I had an honest defense; if my client was not guilty every man that had said a word to him from the time the crime was committed should be placed on the stand. It may not be the right way of trying a case. I don't know, but I do believe that an honest defense is never out of place in a court room. But this is not an honest defense; it is not even a fair defense. If they had testimony to prove the innocence of Heath they should have put it on the stand.

"We are not ashamed of our witnesses; not one. There was not a man who came upon the witness stand and testified that was not the superior of Dick Heath as he stood in the streets of Fresno on the night of the McWhirter murder. Spease who tried to lie and fell down—the man who had made an affidavit for the defense and when confronted with it went back on the affidavit and said, 'I told the truth before the grand jury and I told the truth now.' Both Spease and Daley are now in jail charged with perjury."

"Is that a proper statement to make to the jury?" asked Mr. Denprey.

"Yes, sir; it is. In jail charged with perjury by Charles J. Stilwell, whom you accused of conspiracy to charge Dick Heath with this crime. He has put these men in jail to keep others from doing the same thing and that made the defense much weaker than it was intended to be.

"Why have not counsel for the defense sworn out warrants against the witnesses who have testified for us. There never was a finer lot of witnesses on the witness stand than those who testified for us, and there is not one of them that is not the peer of Heath; not one of them who was not more of a man.

A PREDICTION.

"I will say to you now as a prediction, that if counsel for the defense argue this case they will pitch into Stilwell. They will hold him up before you and accuse him of everything you can think of, and they will abuse the other witnesses for the prosecution. During the balance of the time they will harp on friendship and say that we have not shown a motive for the murder, that we could not show that Heath had any motive for murdering this man. We could not show what was in Heath's mind when he went there that night to commit the murder—whether for revenge or whether for hire.

"They will say to you that money has been used by the prosecution. I will say to you that it is lucky there was some money on the side of the prosecution. God knows where we would have landed with Foote and Dempsey after us if it hadn't been for Johnson."

In commenting upon the fact that more local talent had not been employed by the defense Mr. Walser said that the members of the Fresno bar have some conscience and they did not believe that the proper way to conduct a case is to insult counsel and abuse witnesses. Every person that went on the stand for the prosecution was insulted, and so was everybody else that was connected with the prosecution except Mr. Johnson and he was listened to with due respect.

"They even insulted the court and there is no telling what they would not have done if the court had not socked it to Foote in the shape of $100 fine for contempt."

"Does the court consider that a proper argument to this jury?" asked Mr. Foote.

Judge Holmes looked at the clock which denoted the hour of 5 and Mr. Walser said that he would conclude his argument this morning, whereupon the court adjourned until 9:30 this morning.

Expenses at the World's Fair.

The admission ticket entitles the visitor to see all of the World's fair proper, covering 500 acres of Jackson park. This includes access to the 12 principal buildings, the state and government buildings and the headquarters of all countries represented. The guidebook may be bought in one large volume or in parts. A few cents will be charged for rolling chairs, gondolas and boats on the lagoon. These will be a great assistance in economizing time and strength. Guides who will pilot a party of five for 50 cents an hour may be hired, but the Columbian guards are prepared to give information, and armed with a catalogue you will have but little use for a guide.

For the one admission fee you may also walk in the Midway plaisance and see the curious foreign architecture and modes of life and industry. If you desire to enter any of the buildings or villages, a fee of about 25 cents will have to be paid, as these are private concessions.

If you are prepared to economize, you can live comfortably and see all the sights for a month on $100. One hundred and fifty dollars should be enough for any reasonable human being, though of course there is practically no limit to the amount you may spend on souvenirs, works of art and personal display. You can even pay as if you were four persons rolled into one if you insist on a private bathroom at a hotel, but $3 to $5 a day will pay all reasonable expenses.—Chicago Letter.

The President at a Reception.

Mr. Cleveland has by force of precedent continued the ancient custom of receiving the general public three times a week in the great east parlor, but there is little doubt that he should like, as probably any other president would like, to escape this task of handshaking. The hour set for this function is 1:30 p. m., just after the president has eaten luncheon. A man who is so intimately familiar with Mr. Cleveland as to know his private personal ways is authority for the statement that upon every one of these public reception days Mr. Cleveland has gone to his bedroom and there quietly slipped into his pocket a revolver, and then descended the stairs to the east parlor.

Moreover, the throng of visitors who flock to these public receptions is kept at some distance from the president as he stands in the doorway which serves as an exit for those who pass him. This is done by a cordon of servants of the house, who, counting merely the doorkeepers and messengers, entirely outside of the clerical force in executive offices, number at least 20. The visitors shring by the president in Indian file, and as they pass him, receiving each one a shake of the hand, they pass also a most pleasant but determined looking man standing exactly opposite Mr. Cleveland. The people do not know it, but this man is also armed.—New York Recorder.

Likely to Be Cruel Sport.

Colonel Cody could put himself at a very much better enterprise than that of encouraging the cowboy race which is to take place to the World's fair. It is not in the least likely that a race run by cowboys of several nationalities, all of them the wildest men of their type, will be signalized by any great amount of humanity. Indeed the chances are that the horses will simply be run beyond their strength. Such a race is in great contrast to a race between trained horses, whose speed is a matter of fine calculation, and to whom the whip is seldom touched. The race of the cowboys it is very much more than likely will contain every possible feature of brutality.

It may be characteristic of a portion of the west, but the people at the fair do not want to see everything that is characteristic of this country, but only that which is best as well as that which is characteristic. It is to be hoped that officers of the humane society will be on the ground, and that they will see that there is no slaughter of horses. We want to leave that sort of thing to Germany—which does it well.—Omaha World-Herald.

The Progress of Socialism.

The progress of socialism is making the Duke of Cambridge a sadder—it could not of course make him a wiser—man. It was very sad, he said at a charity dinner, to think that the masses were led to believe that they could benefit themselves by pulling down the classes.

In this world, continued his royal highness, of course it was impossible for all of us to be on a level, for if all were made equal one day some would be superior on the morrow. Fortunately the world was governed and ought to be governed by common sense, and no hoped it would always continue to be.

But the duke forgets two things. The first is that it is quite possible to imagine a new order of society under which those who "would be superior on the morrow" would be so in virtue of merit and not of birth. And the second is that under the existing order of society, though proved capacity can often ascend, no effective means—as Professor Huxley somewhere laments—has yet been found for making proved incapacity descend.—Westminster Gazette.

Prunes or Wheat.

Ten thousand pounds of green prunes per acre, or 2,000 pounds of dried, is a conservative estimate. Twenty bushels of wheat, or 1,200 pounds, is a large estimate per acre. The farm value of the prunes this year is $300; the farm value of the wheat is $15. Our California peach orchards will show as many pounds green as of dried prunes, with half the dried product of prunes worth this year $300 per acre. We have low prices for fruit at times, but never down to cost of production. There never has been a time when good fruit well handled and cured did not bring a good profit.—General Chipman's Paper.

In February last, we learn from the United States Wreck Chart of the North Atlantic, there were no fewer than 45 derelict vessels in that ocean, and more than half of them were in the track of the transatlantic liners.

"I got an awful cold," replied Colonel Morney.

"Have you"——

"Yes, I have. I have polished my bronchial tubes with Conlin's Consumption Conghine."

"No, but have you"——

"Yes! Course I have. I've had goose grease rubbed all over my throat and chest, and I"——

"But, I say hold on, have you"——

"I tell you there's nothing I haven't tried. I took a hot bath, drank a pint of boiling lemonade and rubbed my hide almost off with Mustang Liniment, but"——

"Now, listen! Have you"——

"Yes, I have. Tried them all, but they're no good. Why, last night I"——

"That's all right, but have you"——

"Have I what?"

"Have you time to go over to Flynn's and have something?"

"Why the deuce didn't you talk sense at the start!" responded the colonel. "I'm with you."—Exchange.

Progress and Cookery.

"The World Moves."

There is no better illustration of this old saying than the numerous schools now-a-days devoted to practical kitchen processes. These schools have been alert to find a reasonable substitute for lard, the use of which is so generally condemned. This want has been fully met by the new vegetable Lard. When science strikes the kitchen, it strikes home and everybody gets the benefit. Cottolene is a clean, delicate and economical substitute for Lard—cleaner than the hog, delicate as the finest vegetable oil, economical from its low price and small quantity required to be used. Prove it for yourself by a trial.

At grocers everywhere.

REFUSE ALL SUBSTITUTES.

A Letter That Speaks for Itself.

FRESNO, July 12, 1893.

DR. LAURA A. HARRIS:

Dear Doctor.—I write this letter unsolicited, and you may use it for publication if you desire. As you are aware, I suffered for a number of years with chronic malaria. I consulted physicians and tried remedies in vain. At last I was advised to consult you, and the result is a complete cure. I have not had a chill since beginning the treatment with you. I sincerely hope that others afflicted as I have been will take advantage of your wonderful treatment. MAMIE E. WILSON, Blackstone avenue, 1½ miles north from Belmont Store.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.
